Morris Davis- Suicides

With referring to the triple homicide/suicide, depending on...I, if I was, again...I mean, I was at Guantanamo when the suicides happened. I wasn't over in the camps at the time that it happened, but if I were a betting man, I would bet my bottom dollar that they were suicides. I mean, it doesn't make sense, I mean the...Again, I can tell you, I was at Gitmo when it happened, and when word first, you know, got out that three guys were dead, I mean, there were some names that popped to mind that were either significant players, or there were some in the camps that were trouble makers, that were feces-throwers, and hunger strike-instigators. The three guys that died were...I mean, when I heard the names, I didn't know who they were. They were so insignificant, and...that they weren't even names that I recognized. One of the three had been cleared, I mean, he was like a week away from going home.
